

Schlupp returns for World Cup

By Bernard Neequaye

CRYSTAL Palace winger, Jeffrey Schlupp, is set to make a return to the Black Stars after more than a year's absence following his inclusion in Ghana's provisional squad for the upcoming FIFA World Cup in Qatar. The Crystal Palace player last played for

• Continued on Back Page

• Jeffrey Schlupp

• Callum Hudson-Odoi

• Salis Samed

Meteors show class against Mozambique

• Back Page

• Players and officials of the Black Meteors celebrating their win in Maputo

Togbe Afede hints at changes in Hearts leadership

• Page 12

Eddie Nketiah

Not ready for Black Stars

ONE player who was being persuaded by the Ghana Football Association to switch nationality and play for the Black Stars in Qatar next month is Eddie Nketiah.

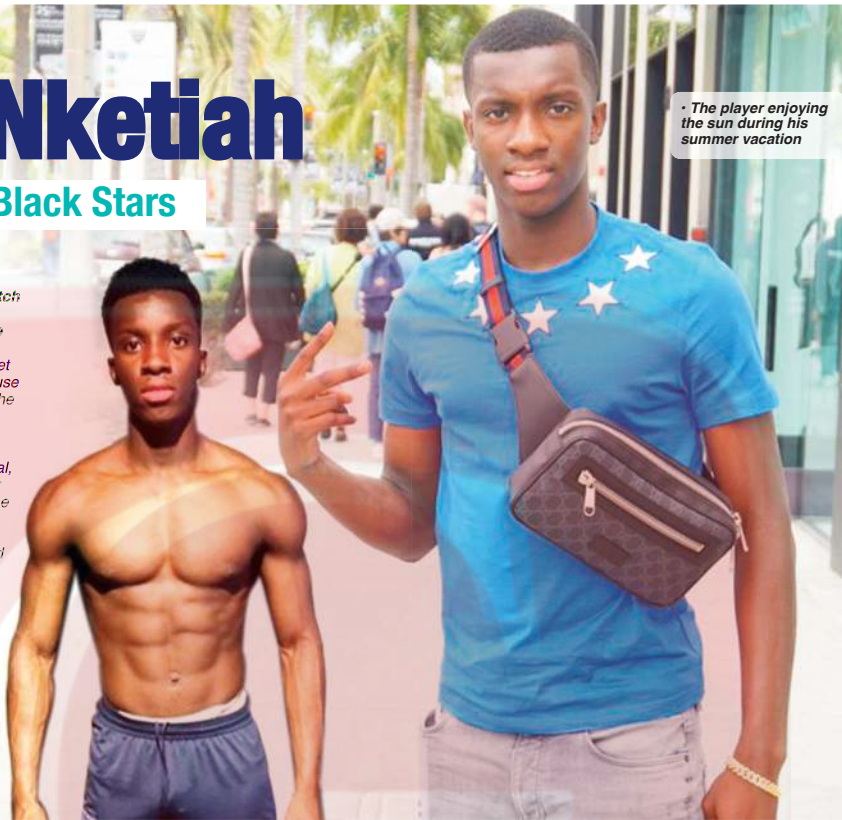

But it appears Ghana might not get his services for the World Cup because he failed to switch his allegiance to the Black Stars.

The England-born Ghanaian professional footballer who plays for English Premier League side, Arsenal, prefers to keep his chances open for the English national team although he is not part of Coach Gareth Southgate's plans for now.

At 23, the youngster is considered one of the fastest attackers in the league and has been compared to the Arsenal legend Ian Wright and his style compared to Jermain Defoe.

He is said to be earning £11,700,000 a week with Arsenal and that is enough for a young attacker to lavish himself with whatever he wants.

• The player enjoying the sun during his summer vacation

• The Arsenal forward displaying his ripped physique

• Nketiah and his teammate ready to board an aircraft for an away match

• Nketiah looking sharp in his suit with his Arsenal teammate

• The Arsenal star having a good time

• This Mercedes G-Wagon is among the player's collection of cars

• The player behind his steering wheels